

Dear Sirs, Madams:

What is America? A totalitarian state where the governing body controls the media? Sinclair Broadcasting is forcing their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election. Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. I can't think of any way in which partisan programs serve the public interest.

Sinclair's actions show the dangers of media consolidation, that we really need to strengthen media ownership rules, and that the license renewal process needs to be taken very seriously.
